Alexandria, VA 22313-1450

Dear Sir:

This response in made in reference to the Office Action dated September 22, 2005 concerning the above-identified application.

Applicants note with appreciation the allowance of claims 1-5 in this case.

The Examiner rejected the claims 6-16 under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. He stated "The claims contain subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. Claim 6 recites: "said movable plate being the primary current carrying member between said stationary member and said movable contact". The specification does not support the aforementioned limitations. The specification does not discuss the issue of the current distribution between said movable plate and a snap acting thermally responsive member. On the contrary, according to Figures (see for
